LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT FOR EMERGING LEADERS

Certificate Program

The Literacy Assistance Center offers a results-oriented six-month certificate program in Leadership Development for Emerging Leaders that combines skill-building workshops with one-on-one leadership coaching.

Who should participate?

New and first-level program managers stepping up to positions where they play a major role in developing or implementing organizational objectives.

What you will learn

Participating program managers work with Leadership Coaches to identify the most significant challenges they face and identify appropriate goals. Then they develop an action plan to meet those goals. Emerging leaders strengthen their ability to meet critical challenges in the field.

2011 SCHEDULE

January 27: Developing Leadership Work Plans

February 24: Leadership & Vision

March 31: Understanding Organizational Context

April 28: Interactive Program Development

May 26: Communicating Effectively

June 23: Building Networks of Influence

What a previous participant says

"After participating in the program, I realized that we all can be effective leaders given the necessary training and motivation.... I am putting to good use what I have learned, translating it into my work, and leveraging it for my continued growth--not just as a Program Coordinator but as a person."

What a coach says

These emerging leaders are developing the wisdom to value the collective input of the team they lead while responding to the needs of the communities and stakeholders they serve. They learn to see obstacles as possibilities. They learn to convey ideas so that people are inspired and moved to action. They articulate a vision for the future that goes beyond the job. We all begin to see why we want to be part of this endeavor of public service.
